Arrival of the Yale Law School Nine From New Haven.

GAME WITH COLUMBIAN TODAY

Result of the Great American Handicap Shoot.

GENERAL SPORTING NOTES

The Yale Law School nine arrived in Washington this morning at 4 o'clock in the special car of Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, who, being an old Yale man, placed it at the disposal of the members for their southern trip. The team will be here until Tuesday morning, and will occupy quarters in the car during their stay. They then leave for Baltimore. There are fifteen men in the party, and the team selected to play Columbian University this afternoon is the strongest the outfit will afford. It will consist of: Burrowes, catcher; Holston and Buckingham, pitchers; Smith, first base; Beers, second base; Mederos, third base; Martin, short stop; Blzzell, left field; Hamlin, center field, and Sanford, right field.

The Yale Law School has not had a team since 1803, when an organization went to Chicago and made an enviable record there.

All the men composing the team are reliable, hard-working players, who believe that team work is far superior to star playing. They expect to win, or come very near victory in all three grants have been superior to the star playing. victory, in all three games here. This morning's practice, however, was the first the team has had out of doors, as work has been confined to the cage. This is, of course, the first game of the season, and their adherents at home are anxiously awaiting tidings.

The Columbian team which will go up against the Yale nine is the strongest that can be secured from the large number of players who are candidates for positions.

Cummings will nite and Engitt will act players who are candidates for positions. Cummings will pitch and Fugitt will act as the receiving end of the battery, his friends believing that his work will be all that could be desired from his good showing yesterday. Greene will play first base, and Mills at second, Dalzell at third, and Ball at short will make up the rest of the and Mills at second, Dalzell at third, and Ball at short, will make up the rest of the infield. Proctor or Goodfellow in left, Shaw in center, and Beard in right field, will make up the team. The men are all confident of a victory, and say they will play the game of their lives, in order to win the respect of the city for the new team. They will wear the new uniforms provided for the club, consisting of gray suits, with a dark blue sweater, and stockings with an orange stripe, the colors of the university. stripe, the colors of the university.

The game will be called at 2:30 at Capitol Park, and extra arrangements have been made for seating a large number of spectators. Tomorrow the visitors will play George-town University, and Monday the Catholic

MONDAY'S COLLEGE GAME.

Catholic University Nine to Play the

Yale Law School. The base ball history of the Catholic University will be inaugurated next Monday afternoon, when the team will meet the Yale Law School men. Because of the first appearance, and especially since it represents that part of the university which is not yet a year old, the interest concerning it is very great: There is every prospect that the men will be in good trim, so as to show the curious ones the quality of the experienced men, of which the team is composed. Practice has been steadily carried on on the grounds of the Washington Outing Club, just outside the university property, and each man gives promise of playing a hard, clean game.

The players have been for the most part decided upon, and Capt. McTighe has selected the following feam: Center field, Quinn; catcher, Painter; left field, Procter; shortston, O'Brien; third have Twoby, see stristop, O'Brien; third base, Twohy; sec-ond base, Cashman; first base, Burrough; pitcher, McTighe; catchers, O'Brien and

However, several other men are still considered. The uniforms in which the men will appear are brownish gray shirt and trousers. A monogram C. U. on the pocket of the former; black cap, black stockings, with two stripes, one yellow, the other white, and a white sweater, with yellow

The game will be played at Capitol Park at 3.30 o'clock. BEARD WAS INVINCIBLE.

Only Two Hits Made Off His Pitching by Gallaudet.

Columbian University and Gallaudet College played six innings yesterday at Capitol Park, the mutes getting another shutout by the score of 21 to 0. Beard pitched a good game for the Columbian men, while Fugitt's work behind was a great improvement on his previous style. Greene and Dalzell led in the batting. The Gallaudets were able to make but two hits off Beard, and made eight errors, while the 'Varsity boys show a clean column in that regard. The mutes played their characteristic dogged game, but were clearly out-classed. The Columbian boys showed up in great shape in team work. They are all old players, and the combination as it stands now should prove a winning team during the coming season. The score follows:

The boys' race in the afternoon resulted in Lang Shearer winning in 48 seconds. Last night's racing proved the banner event of the show. It was not until nearly 11 o'clock that the races were concluded. The half-mile-race for boys resulted as follows: Entries—G. Daly, L. J. Vogt, B. Neimeyer, J. Biggs, T. Smith and W. Ferguson. The winner was L. J. Vogt. Time, 1914 seconds.

Clark, treasurer, with following named as the board of directors: J. P. Clark, W. S. McKean, Harry B. Parker, S. W. Stinemetz, Chas. Taylor Calvera and Dr. Henry T. Harding.

Students Going to Old Point. Arrangements have been made for a par ty of the Georgetown students to accompany the base ball nine in their trip to Old Point Comfort, where they will play the Yale team Wednesday after Easter.

Short Stop Schelbeck Detained. J. Earl Wagner has received a letter from Frank Scheibeck saying he had beer seriously ill with the grip, and that his physician was of the decided opinion that he would not be able to play ball before May 1. While his absence will not seri-cusly be felt, as De Montreville will be placed regularly at short, it is unfortunate that he will miss the spring practice.

THE GOLD ERA IN SOUTH AFRICA. Railway Construction Stimulated by This industry.

From the Nineteenth Century, In measuring the advance try we look naturally in the first place to the development of its public works. The establishment of the gold industry on the Randt has proved a most effective stimulus to railway construction in South Africa. Today Johannesburg-built on land which in 1886 was part of an absolutely barren waste-is approached by three distinct lines. which connect it directly with the four chief ports of South Africa, Delagoa bay, Durban, Port Elizabeth and Cape Town Of these lines, the earliest, which traverses the Free State from end to end and links the Randt with the Cape Colony, was not opened until July, 1892 The Pretoria-Delagoa Bay line was com pleted in the autumn of 1894, and the exension of the Randt railway to Cnarles town, the connecting point with the Natal line, was only effected a few months ago. These, together with some subsidiary lines, represent a total of 1,000 miles of railway constructed mainly under the stimulus of the gold industry in the Transvaal. To this total two considerable pieces of railway construction, accomplished in the interes of the gold industry in the Chartered Com-pany's territories, must be added. Of these the first extended the main trunk line of the first extended the main trunk line of Africa from Kimberley successively to Vryburg and Mafeking, in 1890 and 1894, and the second, the Beira line, by securing a rapid passage through the "fly country," brought Salisbury into easy communication with the east coast of Africa at the port so named. Taken together, they measure 342 miles. It should be added also that the extension of the trunk line from Mafeking toward Buluwayo is in process of construction. To have driven 1,350 miles of railway in six years is a remarkable achievement for a country in which the European population is still considerably under three-quar ters of a million, and which has not hither to been characterized by the rapidity of its progress. The telegraph has advanced further and more speedily than the railway. Here the chief gain has been in the vast regions northward of the Limpopo, opened up by the Chartered Company. The wires were carried from Mafeking to Victoria in December. 1891; they reached Salisbury, 819 miles beyond Mafeking, in February, 1892, and today telegraphic communication has and today telegraphic communication has been established between Salisbury and Blantyre, in Nyasaland.

WHAT THE CHILDREN MAY EAT. Wholesome and Appetizing Disher for Youthful Digestion.

From the New York Times. Catering for the children's eating is one of the most trying, as it is one of the most important, parts of the modern mother's household duties. The word modern is used advisedly, for it is only recently that mothers have realized that what their children eat is a powerful physical and moral agent in their development. Health, temper, and, to a certain extent, ability, all wait upon digestion, and digestion upon whole some living. The growing generation itself understands this. "Send me some whole wheat bread," writes a college athlete to his mother. "I can't train on this boiled flour stuff." He was used to the other, and missed its nourishment.

How to give her children the food they need, and yet satisfy the childish craving for various unwholesome edibles, is the problem that confronts is the painstaking chatelaine every morning, when she goes to the kitchen for a talk about the day's meals with the priestess of that domain. A few simple facts will help her. One is that cooked-over meat is most indigestible. It may be heated through in a hot gravy, or minced fine and rolled in a ball of mashed potato, but for youthful stomachs it should not be twice brought to the cooking point. Meat pies are most wholesome when made of fresh meat, and with a biscuit rather than a postry court A programme of the state o of fresh meat, and with a biscuit rather than a pastry crust. A vegetable pie is a dish children usually like. To make it a deep dish should be filled with sliced potatoes, onions, chopped carrots and turnips, a few

"I give the children," said she, "cake and sweets just often enough to prevent their feeling aggrieved. I got the hint from my eldest boy some years ago, when he came to me one day with the plaint, 'Why don't we ever have cake or pies? Other fellows do. I hear them say so.' As to candy, a not infrequent dessert with us is a dish of good candy, home-made, if possible, but pure, at all events."

Increase of Russian Power.

From the Contemporary Review. Would western civilization be the gainer or the loser by an extension, amounting to predominance of the Russian power? The many amiable qualities of the Russian character, which, perhaps, no person is better qualified to appreciate than the traveler who has enjoyed Russian hospitality, lisarm those feelings of unreasoning antipathy which, when once they have arisen between nations, are the most difficult to allay. But the Russian government has unhappily precluded itself from appealing to the higher instincts of the cultivated European peoples. Their ruthless treatment of the Jews, their cruel pan-Slavic policy, nay, the resian cclinists in Armenia who are religious exiles rather than colonists, debar them from such an appeal. Their commercial policy is not calculated to enlist the good will of the commercial classes in Europe; hey have sealed up that natural avenue they have sealed up that natural avenue of western commerce with Asia by the Black sea, and the Valley of the Kur. In this manner they have themselves afforded the strongest and most realistic arguments to those who still see in the Russian empire a menace to all that Europe holds they are and who guarte the prophecy of the dear, and who quote the prophecy of the first Napoleon, that Europe would again be overrun and her institutions overturned the barbarians of the north.

English or German Colonization.
